Tech Tools and Rules for Teaching

Participate in a demonstration teaching session that showcases a variety of educational technologies and activities to make the case for regular use of appropriate technology in Christian education.

Workshop:

Follow the morning's presentation with an opportunity to dig deeper. We'll debrief the demonstration teaching session and evaluate its use of technology. We'll go behind the scenes to explore the tools and techniques used in making the session. You'll also explore a variety of technologies you can use in the classroom and in educational administration and take with you an online catalog of resources and a way to keep in touch with colleagues interested in educational technology. Bring your notebook computers, webcams, and/or tablets for hands-on experience.

Rev. Von Clemans

Rev. Clemans is an alumnus of Union Presbyterian Seminary (M.Div. '78, MACE '80) and is in the second year of the D.Ed.Min. program at Columbia Theological Seminary (2014). Von has served the Presbyterian Church for over three decades in local congregations, theological school administration, on presbytery staffs, and for the last 12 years, as Associate Pastor for Adult Education at Myers Park

Presbyterian Church, in Charlotte, NC. His interest in technology spans his years of ministry. His particular focus is in making appropriate use of technology as a tool for enhancing ministry. His wife, Marion, is a retired Christian Educator (PSCE '71). They have two adult children and one granddaughter.
